You and your organization are trash. I hope to God that there is an afterlife so that something more powerful than us humans will sort you out.

You may think you are winning the Moral battle with your followers, but the greater good should have you burning in hell with the rest of the Greedy, Selfish, Paranoid world in which you exist.

Enjoy your win in this life. I hope its worth it for what I prey is coming to you when you transition to the afterlife.

Recently, your organization has been spreading propaganda ads slandering a Sandy Hook father. As if this man's loss of his son was enough, you thought it wise to discuss a drug charge he had ten years ago, an offense I am sure you (Richard Burgess) have done in the past and may or may not have been arrested for. But because you find it so reprehensible that a man, after losing his son, is advocating for stronger background checks and closing of gun show loopholes, you felt it necessary to slander this man.

You are standing against 89-93% of America, depending on whichever left-leaning or right-leaning poll you read. Even over 70% of NRA members agree to stronger background checks. If you are against background checks but for voter ID laws, you are simply a hypocrite. If you are against background checks but for stricter border safety, then you are a hypocrite. If you are against background checks, then you are saying you are okay with the possibility (which is quite high), that a criminal, a drug cartel member, a terrorist group can access American manufactured weapons. Your organization, then, would be in direct contradiction to our national safety. Your organization is despicable for attacking a parent who lost their child and I would never wish it on you or anyone who works in your organization but it seems you have no sympathy or empathy and would only come to understand such grief if put into that position.

But I suffice to say that the average citizen has more common sense than you or your organization which is a front group for gun manufacturers. You are doing what a corporate machine does, to make money. You care not about your fellow citizens. You care not about the second amendment nor do you honor what the founding fathers had intended it to be used for. You care only who is lining your pockets. Its the money Lebowski, and that's all. I am only contacting you to scold you like you scolded that man in your propaganda. Difference is, I am scolding you out of a sense of duty to defend a man who I empathize with. You scolded him out of concern for your bank account.

You will lose on this issue. you will be on the wrong side of history. And your values will die off like so many of those you would find in the backwoods.Regards,Matthew

Dear Rich,
This cat fight you're in with a father of one of the Sandy Hook victims is a No Win situation. It just makes you look like the world's largest douche-bag , and casts the things you believe in in THE WORST possible light. Your lack of compassion, your total insensitivity to the devastating loss a grieving parent is suffering, your utter pig-like selfishness in asserting your claim to rights supercede his... it just makes you seem like a monster. Perhaps you really are a monster - in the Ariel Castro mold - your words and actions, to those with no dog in this fight - are incomprehensibly cruel and devoid of any humanity. I know that you are in a radical fringe cult and are operating under the same brainwashed conditions as the Westboro Baptist Church - a bunch of ditto heads spewing hate. Look in the mirror - that's YOU in the news. Ugh. Disgusting.

Helpful feedback from the public, worth what you paid for it.

YOUR PRESS RELEASE ON MR. HESLIN

You should be ashamed of yourself. You're nothing but disgusting. Your article is inaccurate, inflammatory and outright filled with lies.

You care so damn much about the children then why not put out a press release about all the parents that are responsible for their own children being shot and killed or shot and maimed? How about the poor little children having to now live a life of sorrow and pain because they killed a sibling due to their parents disregard for their lives? The parents who leave a loaded weapon around where a child can pick it up and shoot someone or themselves. Those parents who pay no price for being so careless that a child dies. Over 3500 children are killed in this country every year by guns. Put a press release about that.

You are pathetic. No one is trying to take your precious guns away. Background checks do not stop the sale of guns. Just the sale to criminals and the insane. Though I suspect that is your issue. You wouldn't be allowed to own one.

None of you care about children as much as you care about your guns.

You disgust me and the majority of America. Keep up this type of hypocritical bullshit. It only helps those of us who want tighter regulations.

Please stop your smear campaign/torture of Neil Heslin who lost his little boy in the school massacre at Sandy Hook Elementary!

Attacking a murdered 6yo boy's father in his grief (or because of his grief) obviously insensitive and cruel. IF he has legal issues that is a separate matter and has nothing to do with the fact that his little boy was murdered.

Your attacks on him are morally offensive to anyone with a conscience and are counter productive to your cause.

To suggest his sons murder "doesn't count" or his grief "doesn't matter" because he has some kind of legal issues is sick. If that is your possession, then I suppose when you get pulled over and issued a traffic ticket, someone can draw a gun and blow your 3 year olds head off. And of course if you object, it "doesn't matter" because you broke the law. WRONG. Your children are just as precious as Neil's son or any other child. To suggest otherwise is sick, twisted and 100% un-American.

If you wish to gain sympathy for whatever positions you hold, attacking grieving parents of small children is totally counter productive. It puts you in the same camp as Westboro Baptist Church.

Rev. Thomas

Rev. Thomas,
I find it interesting that you call our factual press release following an incomplete news report a

'smear campaign'. Even more interesting is that you wish to bring morality and conscience into the mix. You see, we told the truth. We didn't do what was easy, we did what was right. What was not right was the News Times reporting that he was in court for 'motor vehicle violations'.

But the best part about your preaching of morality to us is that you are a liar. Deception is not a moral virtue. That is why we don't engage in lies. Our press release cited our sources completely and thoroughly.

In return, you send us an email that alleges the following:

"IF he has legal issues that is a separate matter and has nothing to do with the fact that his little boy was murdered."

You are correct. I agree absolutely. The odd part is that you seem to be the one suggesting that the two things have something to do with each other. We have never made such a tie.

His 'legal issues' are actually multiple felony convictions for narcotics possession, 3 DUIs in 6 months, larceny and fraud with passing thousands of dollars in bad checks all around. His legal issues also include current charges of the same fraud and larceny for more bad checks (so his behavior is not going away or getting better, he is the same person). He also has completely disregarded the checks and licenses in place (that he is advocating be applied to everyone except for himself) and telling people that it will fix things when he knows it accomplishes nothing but hurting good people.

The same laws you and I both would advocate for eliminating have destroyed his legal ability to drive a car or own a firearm and yet he is going out of his way to try and inflict that damage on more people. He has already hurt a lot of people in this state with that advocacy and he is now trying to do the same on the Federal level.

We all make choices in our life. If you notice, most Sandy Hook parents have made the choice to grieve their children and not inflict harm on everyone else for their loss. So yes, his legal trouble had nothing to do with his terrible loss. And no one (other than you) is making a connection between the two. But that terrible loss does not give him a moral justification or a right over other people to do them harm. Especially when everything he advocates for is hypocritical and based on known falsehoods.

Another thing you attribute to us:

I agree that is sick. That is why we would never make such a claim. I am a bit horrified that you did make this claim. But I am also angered that you would use quotes around those terms to suggest that you are quoting me/us in this. That is a lie Reverend. And you know it just as much as I do.

"then I suppose when you get pulled over and issued a traffic ticket, someone can draw a gun and blow your 3 year olds head off."

And that is where you become a lunatic.

One of our actual quotes from our press release is the following:

"So often we find that the strongest critics of the right to bear arms are those people who cannot be trusted with firearms themselves."

And you seem to be even further proof of that statement. You read an article online, never read the actual release (obviously) and then went off half-cocked to make horrific statements that really show how messed up and delusional your thought process and morality is, not ours. The ideas you have of someone's past legal troubles justifying the murder of their children are completely your own fabrications and show a startling and sinister side of your psyche.

Then to top it all off, you say:

"It puts you in the same camp as Westboro Baptist Church."

I would be careful there Reverend, projection is a very real issue and it looks like you do a lot of it.

People should enjoy reading your vitriol and hate online. I will make sure to give proper and thorough attribution as well.

Hi. Just wanted to let you all know you're fucking idiots. You're despicable and I hope each and every one of you suffers. I am so angry that I feel like saying I hope your children die so you can feel the pain this guy has been through, but that would be terrible because children are innocent and don't deserve to die. Just like his child didn't deserve to die.

especially not to pad the wallets of gun lobbyists and producers.

One day, somehow, you're all going to regret being such idiots. I sincerely hope the government DOES take your guns away since that's obviously what would hurt you. I also sincerely hope that I am there to watch it happen and to see how butthurt you are about it. I hope they take away your right to bear arms, and I hope terrible awful things happen to you and each and every one of your members while you don't have a gun to make you a man.

Connecticut Carry
Every citizen has a right to bear arms in defense of himself and the state.

You must have pulled this out of your ass because it is not in the Constitution! "A well-regulated militia, being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear Arms, shall not be infringed."

You can't pick and choose the words you want to make the Second Ammendment suit your needs. To which militia do you and your Connecticut Carry members belong? I didn't think so!

So what if Neil Heslin is a felon. Who cares? He is a father whose child was gunned down because of people like you! Maybe you'll suffer some tragic loss involving friends and family because some lunatic got a semi-automatic with a 30-round clip off the internet. Maybe that wouldn't even change your warped mind. After all, for you fanatics, the Second Ammendment trumps everything. Can you even name any of the other 26 Ammendments? Probably not. I'm wasting my time writing to you anyway.

I agree. Because if you knew what you were talking about at all, you would know that what you quoted is Article 1, Section 15 of the Connecticut Constitution. Hell, even a quick google search would have found that for you.

Seeing as how we are Connecticut Carry, and not United States Carry, we think our state constitution is a little more specific to our cause. Plus we have a lot less mouth breathing idiots trying to argue about 'Militia' and 'Well Regulated' when they don't understand either word.

Then again, seeing as how you still think the Second Amendment is in the 'Constitution' and that militias are any kind of argument, even post Heller, I am most assuredly wasting my time as well.

Next time you decide to write a drunken screed on a topic you know nothing about, you might want to spend some time doing even basic research so you can avoid looking like an idiot.

Hello,

Your smear campaign against Neil Heslin is disgusting and you should be ashamed of yourself.

Likely, you receive a lot of hate mail. The reason: you're a terrible person.

There's no gentle way to say this, but you're insane and I can't blame you for that. You're likely the product of poor upbringing, or you have an embarrassingly small penis, and guns help compensate for that.

Use this as an opportunity to improve yourself.

I read with sadness your vile attack on Mr. Heslin. His criminal history matters not when it comes to the murder of his precious little boy. To rip this man apart in such a manner shows that you are nothing but vile smear-mongers. Mr. Heslin is not applying to get a gun and since the tragic death of his son he likely doesn't want one. So the fact that he could not qualify for a gun license matters not at all.

You sir, apparently have nothing better to do with your time than slander a man who lost his son to people like you. It was people like you who indeed killed his son. The shooters mother had those guns "LEGALLY". Yup, just like you own your guns legally. The only problem was that she had no idea her son would snap and grab her weapons and go on a murderous rampage. Can you truly say that none of the people in your will never snap, grab your weapons and go a murderous killing spree? No, that's not a guarantee you can make. You can hope it would never happen but you can't be certain. IF that were to happen and a small child were killed would you then terrorize that child's father? Sadly, the chances are yes that you would. You have that kind of mentality.

Slandering Mr. Heslin really does nothing to hurt him but rather it shows you and your organization for what you really are; vile cowards. You, Mr. Rich - i can not find your last name because your site does not function properly, much like you- gain nothing but vitriol and anger toward you, your organization and other groups of like minded vile gun crazies.

Lay off Mr. Heslin. Keep in mind that he has lost a child. I am a father and I understand how that must be the worst emotional pain imaginable. His past has nothing to do with the fact he has lost a little boy; nothing. People like you and the NRA will stoop to new levels of low in an attempt to advance your cause. Unfortunately, it does nothing but hurt Mr. Heslin, his son's memory and any advances you think you might gain through this.

Remember above all else - he has lost his son to the son of a legal gun owner.

Yours

R.A. Scott

Mr. Burgess.

I left a telephone message for you yesterday evening concerning my feelings about your "organization". This morning, I called the Connecticut Association of Non Profit to register my disgust at your organization. You and your followers are loathsome in your indecent harassment of Neil Heslin. As someone who has worked with many non profits in Newport, RI, I am stunned and appalled by your abuse of the non profit status your organization currently holds. I hope this status is short lived.

Sincerely,

Jacqueline Tomlinson

Hi Rich;

I'm writing because I both support you, and am ashamed.

With support, I favor the right of the individual to carry responsibly and have been a gun owner myself. It's not the responsible people who worry me. It's the out of whack people who do things like shoot up schools and movie theaters sending folks running for their lives. Because of these people, we need some kind of checks on who gets to own weapons. But the real root problem: it's not the GUN ... it's the human being behind the trigger. Responsible gun ownership is knowing when to use it and when not to.

Where I'm ashamed is the press release you recently wrote about background checks, naming the father of one of the Newtown victims. I have NO idea what the exact nature of Neil Heslin's drug conviction was and whether it was for smoking some pot, or something more serious, but it was ten years ago and to my knowledge, this man has had no serious offenses since. The only crime which has no statute of limitations is murder. For everything else, it is usually either three or seven years depending on the nature of the offense. This man should be okay as far as the law is concerned for exercising his full citizenship rights including gun ownership. But even though you and I may differ some on that issue, what really upsets me is that you brought one of those affected by the Newtown tragedy BY NAME into this. I'm sure your point could have been well made without doing this. You seem to be a very good writer. Hopefully, you'll choose not to name someone in this manner in the future.

In closing, I wish you all my prayers and hopes for a great week and do keep supporting our constitution. I have no problem with this at all and share your passion there.

God Bless

Well, you could actually read the press release to find out.

<http://ctcarry.com/News/Release/b2aa31d5-a170-47fb-944f-ea776c90bc21>

After all, that was the point of releasing the information.

Heslin's troubles are a lot more than a pot conviction 10 years ago. He is a multiple felon who lost his license after multiple drunk driving convictions and continued to drive uninsured, unregistered and unlicensed. His current batch of trouble was brought up in the press, but the press either lacked the history or did not want to tell the truth.

And let me make myself very clear: We did not bring Neil Heslin into this. Neil Heslin made himself a national celebrity with his lobbying efforts.

"I definitely don't think he needs a gun."

Well I don't think he needs a gun. I wouldn't tell him he couldn't have one though.

You see, I think Neil Heslin is a human being the same as you or I. And therefore he has identical rights to you and I.

Unfortunately though, he has devoted his life to take other people's rights away. And that is hurting a lot of people here in Connecticut. His loss was tragic. No question. But I don't know anyone here in Connecticut that wouldn't have given up their life to save his son or any of those kids. And they certainly would not have hesitated to shoot back and stop the little monster that was coming through the doors. Something that the gun groups he now allies himself with have made illegal.

Neil Heslin is a walking ball of contradictions. His lobbying will do nothing to make anyone safer, but will instead hurt a lot of people. He knows that and persists with it anyway.

He knows he is a multiple felon with a long (and continued) history of recklessly disregarding laws and common sense and putting people's lives in danger. But he has no problem with telling people who have never been convicted of a crime that they shouldn't be able to own the property that they already own.

The problem isn't what Neil Heslin has done. It is what he continues to do to good, peaceful people who have done nothing to deserve it.

This comment was posted on an article on huffington post about how you, and very cowardly, I might add - verbally attacked Neil Heslin. It sums up every feeling I have towards you, and others like you.

I don't know about anyone else, but I have about had it with this nonsense. Gun owners? Defenders of the constitution? Warriors for freedom? No, just the school yard thug that is little more than a vicious, uncivilized animal frothing at the mouth with nothing but pure, barbaric hatred for anyone and anything that might separate you from your oversized pacifiers. This is not about protecting yourselves, your families, your homes or the constitution...this is about having power over others...the anger, the contempt, the vitriol is little more than trying to intimidate others into fearing you and what you are capable of...yes look at me, I am mean, nasty, vulgar, callous, cruel, unfeeling AND I carry a gun, so stay out of my way, don't argue with me, I say what is and is not...I am dangerous. Fear what I might do to you if you oppose me or get in my way...I rule here. Americans? No Americans I know openly act in such ways then desecrate the flag by pledging allegiance to it and insult the founding fathers by exploiting their work to bully their fellow Americans into surrendering their beliefs.

Leave him be, you arrogant, ignorant, excuse for a human.

"Human" would indicate you are one of humanity - which, with your verbal attacks on someone who suffered such a huge loss to their family and their community, are certainly not.

Mr. Burgess, Quick note to express my revulsion about the way you are attempting to smear Mr. Heslin with your personal attacks. Despicable about covers it. So if a person's child is brutally murdered, but that parent has had troubles in their past, they are forbidden to take any steps to prevent something like that from happening again? Is that your twisted logic? I'm sure that your past is spotless, right? Oh, it's not? You were arrested not too long ago I hear? A little Breach of Peace issue was it? Why do you feel the need to carry a gun around all the time? What are you afraid of exactly? Two things:1. If anyone is "profiting" from the Sandy Hook murders the NRA is on top of the list. It would seem that you and your group are also looking for a piece of that pie.2. Being well-known due to being a confrontational bully is not something to be proud of. I hope you wake up in the middle of the night and realize that this path you have chosen is dark, unhealthy, and wrong and that you apologize to Mr. Heslin. Your quality of life will improve if you do. From a fellow Connecticut resident named Margaret.

Hello Rich,

I cannot believe you and your organization are going after Neil. The man is seriously grieving and wants what the majority of people in the U.S. want; a background check. If you are old or weak I can understand needing a gun. But at least let's check the person out. What you are advocating is to let a terrorist have a gun. I have never met you but I assume you are a frightened man. Are you weak and afraid Rich? Does it make you feel more like a man? Have you ever considered Jiu Jitsu? I mean it's much more effective than a gun. Plus, you get some exercise in sparing. Most of the people I've seen advocating for gun rights are soft. Doesn't seem like they could even jog a mile. I mean if this is you than I can understand your fear. But if you are just being lazy and don't want to workout; you're lame. I mean old ladies have an excuse. Are you soft Rich? Rich, does the gun make you feel strong, more of a man? You should try exercise and leave Neil alone. Rich, you're a lame excuse for an American. Go get another value meal and clean your masculinity, err gun.

Have a crappy day Softy,Stamen

Please, in your effort to promote gun rights, do not cause additional hurt to Neil Heslin, whose son was murdered at Sandy Hook.

I ask that you remove the article from your website, and more, I ask that you do the honorable and courageous thing: apologize for causing Mr. Heslin more pain.

We can disagree--but we must always act with respect and decency. Mr. Heslin does not deserve to be publicly humiliated in order to advance your (or anyone's) particular cause.

You should pick on someone else---someone who has not lost their child in an act of savagery.

Sir,

I saw this press release and wish you to know that I find it to be a despicable attempt at turning Mr. Heslin into a straw man. I am a gun owner and gun rights advocate, but I am also an ardent believer in telling the truth.

In the first instance, I do not know what his background has to do with his grief. What do actions of his from a decade ago have to do with the fact that his child was murdered with a legally-purchased firearm? People make mistakes. But that does not justify the loss he has suffered. The human part of me wishes that you would suffer a loss to know his pain. But the better part of me hopes that you never have to go through the loss of a child. This abuse is simply inhuman, and your actions are bestial.

Second, I am offended that you have to attack the messenger instead of the message. The sign of a man is standing up for his beliefs. And that means engaging in public debate. But to shift the debate to a question of one man's character is cowardly. I am of the opinion that you are less of a man because of it.

Third, I am offended at the interpretation this press release was intending to convey. You certainly may allege the claim that background checks do not work. Even though the evidence suggests that they do not work in their current form, I suppose it would be naive of me to believe that you would tell the whole truth instead of absolutist claims. However, that is your prerogative. A better argument would be that the background checks being proposed will be equally ineffective. There are statistics and other evidence to at least back that claim up. Lobby with integrity - not rhetoric and jingoism, sir. But more offensive than your clear disdain for truth-telling is your willful disregard for reason. It is reckless to suggest that Mr. Heslin is the "poster boy" for background check failures. I agree with you, absolutely, that as a convicted felon he is prohibited by law from owning a firearm. And I agree with you that if he owns a firearm that he purchased otherwise lawfully, then he would be the poster boy for background check failures.

But you and I both know that if he never attempted to purchase a firearm through a process requiring a background check, then there is absolutely no substantive claim you can make that he was able to avoid a background check. Give us evidence that he attempted to purchase a gun and that he successfully avoided a background check. But do not make such leaps of logic. It is offensive to the people you are trying to convince.

Your intentions I do not doubt. We probably agree on a few things, and disagree on a few things.

And I wholly support anybody's right to sway the great debates of our time. What I do not support is using misrepresentations, intentionally-created gaps in logic and reason, and bumper sticker politicization. Our nation was founded on a principle of a free and open marketplace of ideas. And while you have the right to engage in such a reckless manner, you fail our Founding Fathers' notions of reason and justice in the unending objective to perfect this union.

Do better.

Tyler Emerson

Really, you're going to attack the father of a child who died at Newtown? You have no heart, no soul, no empathy or compassion. Who cares what his criminal past is, his son died you asshole! And your statement that Heslin made money from gun control groups is pure BS! This is why you will loose the right to firearms, because you make shit up and attack people who have suffered.

Just because he's a felon doesn't mean that he's wrong about his belief that an assault weapons ban would have saved his child. His illegal behavior would, in no way, have been prevented by anyone carrying a firearm. And just because he broke laws doesn't mean that we shouldn't create laws because they will be broken. Should we legalize murder just because people do it from time to time? And just because he's a felon doesn't mean that he's a danger to the president, implying that a failed background check is what allowed him to shake hands with the president is pure fucking BS.

You're just heartless and cold.

So I offer a suggestion, go fuck yourself.

Worst Persons in the World

Posted on May 9, 2013 at 10:29 am by Bob Cesca

The “Connecticut Carry” pro-gun lobby group for smearing a Sandy Hook Dad, Neil Heslin, the father of slain kindergartner Jesse Lewis. This will make you ill:

A Connecticut gun lobbying group on Wednesday personally attacked the father of a Sandy Hook school massacre victim, accusing him of “profiting off of the tragedy” and saying a decade-old drug arrest makes him a “poster boy” for background check ineffectiveness.

Connecticut Carry, a nonprofit gun lobbying organization, singled out Neil Heslin, whose son Jesse Lewis was killed in the December school shooting, in a press release. Heslin has testified before Congress and attended events at the White House with President Barack Obama in support of increased background checks for gun purchasers.

Heslin was scheduled to appear in court Wednesday to answer charges related to driving with a suspended license and writing bad checks. He has pleaded not guilty, the News Times reported. Heslin was convicted of felony narcotics possession more than a decade ago, around the same period he was arrested multiple times for driving under the influence. Attempts to reach Heslin Wednesday were unsuccessful.

Referring to Heslin’s White House visits, the gun lobby group said, “A felon within arm’s reach of the president of the administration so dead set on background checks. No better testimony to how ineffective background checks are needs to be presented.”

Attacking the character of a man who's child was murdered, because he disagrees with your political position, is entirely disgusting. You've lost all sense of right and wrong. Please, take a moment, look in the mirror, and ask yourselves how you could so lose your senses that you could put the right to carry a gun above the feelings of a grieving father.

What is the most important thing? A child's life? The crushing loss a parent feels at the loss of his own child?

Or defeating background checks for guns?

If you can't answer that question, you've truly lost your way.

Shame on you and all the Americans who would attack a grieving father trying to do what is right for his country! Guns are out of control in America. The 2nd Amendment was written in 1791 when a musket was the weapon of choice and the wilderness was at America's front door. That time is gone. There is no need for citizens to carry assault weapons. There is not need for multi-round magazines. If these were unattainable, then Sandy Hook would never have happened. You think people kill people. You are right. So you should support background checks on PEOPLE!

You think the fore fathers share your beliefs? You are wrong. From the words of Thomas Jefferson:

"I am not an advocate for frequent changes in laws and constitutions, but laws and institutions must go hand in hand with the progress of the human mind. As that becomes more developed, more enlightened, as new discoveries are made, new truths discovered and manners and opinions change, with the change of circumstances, institutions must advance also to keep pace with the times. We might as well require a man to wear still the coat which fitted him when a boy as civilized society to remain ever under the regimen of their barbarous ancestors."

Times change. This is the time for change. Make the ethical choice, and stop being the bully.

Dear Mr. Burgess,

You and your organization's attacks on Mr. Heslin are incredibly vile. It is to be hoped that you will learn a lesson and avoid personal attacks in the future and stick to the issues at hand using rational intelligent arguments to back up your argument. However, it is clear that reactionary individuals such as yourself are beyond either civil, rational, or intelligent discourse, instead preferring to appeal to fear, hatred, and paranoia in order to silence any and all opposition.

Dear Richard Burgess,

We see what you are up to with your smear campaign against the father of the slain Sandy Hook 8 year old. The man surely has the right to give voice to the grief of losing his son. Neil Heslin may not be your ideal or mine, but he has a right to his grief without you and your ilk taking cheap shots at him.

What kind of man would do what you've done? Lots of men in this world need to put on their big boy panties and quit being a waste of skin..

The guys you should be fighting are the idiots who let their 2 year olds play with their guns. Sad that babies with their daddy's and mommy's weapons may be the demise of your interest group. It's only a matter of time before you eliminate yourselves.

Your press release attacking the father of that beautiful, little boy slaughtered at Sandy Hook Elementary is one of the most disgustingly vile attacks ever used by anyone on either side of this debate. Can you imagine the pain and anguish felt daily by that father? Did you see the pain of his inconsolable loss on his face when he testified before congress?

As always, you pro-gun fetishists have gone too far. The NRA and organizations like yours are nothing more than domestic terrorist groups defending the rights of killers to be as efficient as possible in the name of increased gun sales. Your cruel callousness will do more to embolden those in favor of gun control than any pro-control group could. We will fight you with our last breath.

Rich,

You are a despicable human being. What's worse, having a drug arrest or blowing away 26 people with an AR-15 ? It's because of ass-holes like you that there will be more massacres and thousands of other gun deaths in America.

What are you so afraid of ? Do you not want to be part of a solution, not the problem ? Are you afraid your gov is going to come and take away your precious guns ? What an idiot, your head is trapped in a hollywood movie thinking there are conspiracies against you. You don't realize how insane and ridiculous that is. You're obviously listening to way too much shit from losers like Alex Jones, Glenn Beck etc ... They have great stories but out of all the crap they've ever said NONE OF IT HAS EVER COME TRUE ! Dear Connecticut Carry,

As a former Connecticut resident who grew up in Bethel and lived in Danbury and Brookfield Center, let me add my voice of disgust to others who are horrified at your attempts to smear Mr. Neil Heslin. Related to your remarks about his visits to the White House, as a recent visitor to the White House myself, let me tell you that no one gets into the White House for any reason without a background check. I had one. I am sure the White House was totally aware of any information that you dug up about Mr. Heslin. I absolutely cannot believe that you and your organization thought it was a good idea to make your point by attacking grieving Newtown parents. The disgust this engenders only serves to energize those of us who are fighting everyday for sensible gun safety laws. So for this, thank you to Connecticut Carry. We are not going away, we will not cease until the job is done and ignorant, insensitive, heartless articles like yours will only bolster our position that gun ownership is a privilege that needs to be earned. You have, by your article, played your cards, we see your hand and you certainly do not exhibit the courage and compassion that have been displayed by Mr.Heslin and other Newtown parents.

Mr. Burgess (and to any other members of your pathetic organization), Regarding you and your group's recent actions towards Mr. Heslin: In a just world, every time you look in a mirror, you would immediately become nauseous at the sight of the person who you've become. In a just world, you would suffer from persistent insomnia as you struggle to sleep at night knowing that your sense of morals and ethics and common decency in this world has forever been corrupted. In a just world, if you are indeed a father, you would be unable to look your children (or grandchildren) straight in the eye knowing that you have utterly failed them; that you are not worthy of their respect or admiration thanks to the horrific example you have provided to them as to how a decent human being ought to behave and portray himself to the greater world. And, in fact, that is exactly who you are, and you deserve no respect from your children or grandchildren. Alas, we do not live in a just world, and any response I receive from you will likely be full of smug self-righteousness and a feigned sense of shock that I would dare find your actions deplorable. You probably have no problems sleeping at night, because you have no shame. You have demonstrated that in recent days. But realize this: The good people of this country don't care much for bullies, especially self-righteous bullies. Which is exactly what you are, and cowards to boot. As such, your recent little stunt has done nothing to help whatever you believe your cause to be, and only exposes you and your organization as people so obsessed in their love of a certain inanimate object that they will sell every ounce of their soul if they perceive any threat to said inanimate object. You and your ilk are a dying breed, out of step of the mainstream and relegated to the fringes where you belong. Your true colors have shown through, and they could not be any more vibrant. I understand that my email doesn't contain some of the more colorful language that others do, and that you probably won't be posting it up on your sad little Facebook page so you and your friends can gawk and guffaw at it. I'm fine with that. My only hope is that I cost you at least one good night of sleep as you are forced to wrestle with your rotten and fetid excuse for a conscience. Good day sir. Hey Rich,

I have no problem with folks who lobby for things they want.

You have a perfect right to lobby for guns, for example, just as Neil Heslin has the perfect right to speak out against what you're for.

But whether Neil Heslin is a felon or not, his kid was gunned down in that school and you and CT Carry really ought to be ashamed for going personal on him. Whether he's a criminal or not has nothing to do with his right to speak out against what you speak out for.

Moreover, anyone with common sense would see through the nonsensical argument in his case that "the strongest critics of the right to bear arms are those people who cannot be trusted with firearms themselves." We both know that he's not against guns because of his record, he's against them because his son was callously gunned down. And gunned down by weapons obtained legally.

Look, just as the 1st Amendment has been infringed - one can't yell fire in a theater - there's nothing wrong with asking for someone to be checked out, as CT Carry has apparently hypocritically background checked Mr. Heslin -to see if they may be permitted to buy guns.

But using a guy who's kid was shot to death in cold blood just a few months ago is dirty pool and in the poorest of taste. Surely, you guys can do a lot better. Certainly, there are plenty of other, better, examples you can find to prove your point. You certainly could've gotten better p.r. through using a better example.

Perhaps poor judgment should be evaluated as part of the gun buying process. If so, based on this nonsense it'd be a bad idea for CT Carry to be issued a gun license.

Shameful.

You may be a good guy, and CT Carry may be full of good people, but this is terrible. Just terrible. He's a grieving father. Good grief, man, put yourself in his shoes.

Cordially,

Chip Hoyt

"WASHINGTON -- A Connecticut gun lobbying group on Wednesday personally attacked the father of a Sandy Hook school massacre victim, accusing him of "profiting off of the tragedy" and saying a decade-old drug arrest makes him a "poster boy" for background check ineffectiveness."

Mr. Burgess:

If you had a conscience, or an ounce of human decency, you would be ashamed of yourself.

You are sadly void of both.

Ok you want to have a debate on whether or not you have the right to pull out a gun and shoot someone in self defense? Ok have that debate, there are sound arguments there. But YOUR idea and false representation that background checks are going to lead to guns being removed from people hands IS BULLSHIT and you know it. SO stop Bullshitting yourself and the flock that follows you.

You live by the gun, you die by the gun.

By your fucking logic, no criminal follows laws, so why should we have laws?

To Whom it May Concern,

Your tactic of disparaging a father who recently had his young child ripped from him is one of the most disgusting things I have witnessed in my life. As a father of a son of similar age I can only imagine the horror that man has experienced. I don't believe in hell, but that is where you belong. If I was as deplorable as you I would wish that karma steals your children from you in like kind, but I can't lower myself your level.

Mr. Burgess, So, you enjoy the rights under the 2nd Amendment, but you don't like other laws, therefore you scream and yell and talk about how tyranny is coming? This isn't 1783. The slanderous comments you made and/or initmated about Mr. Heslin are outrageous. Some of the ideas from your imagination are not fact based, thus putting them on your blog is inaccurate and ridiculous. e.g., making money from his horrific tragedy. Your incompetence will get you in trouble, but then again, you're already familiar with being in trouble, eh? Oh, and your quote about traffic deaths is irrelevant to the issue.

The fact you live in fear is not our problem - so don't make it a problem. The question is: do you have children? If so, have you ever lost a child? If not, you have not earned the right to comment upon others' loss. Mr. Heslin is his own person - what he does in his own life is no business of yours. Your record is not spotless either... His 1st Amendments rights are as absolute as yours. So, before you go around impugning his character, please know what you're talking about. My question is: have you ever made a mistake? If the answer is yes, then I rest my case.

By the way, please look at pgs 54-55 of the Heller case from Washington D.C. One of your favorite Supreme Court Justices has a surprising thing to say about how the 2nd Amendment is limited.

Steadfast, Tim Cushing

I am writing not to discuss gun control, because in my eyes your group has lost its ability to participate in an issues-based discussion of the subject without rending violence upon the citizens you are trying to protect.

In making your case by using Neil Heslin's former felony charges as evidence, you have disregarded truth in accusing him of profiting from his lobbying. Furthermore, in attacking a victim of gun violence you only serve to weaken your ethos and lose credibility as representatives for thinking humans that live in your state.

I am happy that I do not count myself a resident of the state you claim to represent; California has its own myriad problems, but your tactless group is not one of them.

Please consider this email a suggestion to fire your public relations strategist.

Respectfully,

Daniel Fox

Mr. Burgess, You and your group must be real proud of your accomplishments regarding defaming Neil Heslin, not to mention your callous and ass-backwards campaign to arm more people in America.

You gun freaks are a nasty bunch, and from my experience, mostly a bunch of cowardly scumbags who are worthless in a conflict even when you are packing guns. After looking up your history on the web I see that you are one of those guys parading around with your pistol on your hip like it was 1870. Grow up, man.

As a former VN era Marine, I've had more than my share of guns and have witnessed their destructive power. Seems to me that Sandy Hook would have turned on a light, even in the brain pans of the dim bulbs ranting about 2A and the implications thereof.

For the record, in case you and your brethren can't read too well, the two big words in 2A are "well regulated", which implies that the government has all the right in the world to 'regulate' gun ownership.

So next time you want to shoot pool, just concentrate on 'shooting' pool and not packing heat in a public place. Just because a stupid state law allows it doesn't mean that an intelligent adult needs push the limits of civilian society by playing cowboy and wearing his guns to town.

Like I said earlier, grow up, man.

Wow, I just read what you said about Neil Heslin and I did not think it possible that any human being could stoop so low as to say this man is profitting off his son's death. What the fuck is wrong with you?? Did someone give you a lobotomy or were you just born a self-righteous, callous, ignorant and unfeeling lowlife prick?? This man is DEVASTATED by the loss of his child, a blind man in a dark room could see that but NOT YOU. OH, NO, in your mind this man is on a mission to take away your little popgun. You are a small man who needs to hold a gun to make you feel like a man because you are such a pussy. Clinging to your guns, with fear in your heart that the big, bad, govt will take them away must leave you sleepless many nights. How fucking pathetic can you possibly be.

Why don't you do us all a favor and stick your gun in your mouth and blow your brains out. One less bottom feeding slug piece of shit like you on earth will make me sleep better for sure.

Mr. Burgess,

First off, i have to say your company sickens me to the core. You have some nerve to attack a victim of the Newtown tragedy like you did. Don't you have any morales, or a heart sir? Wait, don't answer that. By your actions you took against this victims father was beyond heartless, so sir, you have NO HEART! My suggestion to you is a public apology to all victims of the Newtown tragedy, IN PERSON!!! Ask for there forgiveness, and while your at it, ask GOD as well. You should be ashamed of yourself. It is my hope you do the right thing by these victims. Sadly if you don't may you live the rest of your life knowing your a heartless, sick individual.

Richard, Congratulations! You have struck a new low in American history. You are a disgusting person to smear Neil Heslin the you and CC have.

How do you sleep at night? This bereaving parent's past or present legalities have NOTHING to do with gun control.

Do you and your buddies high-five every time a young child kills himself, herself or another with a gun?

I wouldn't doubt it. Or maybe you guys just say, "Winning!"

May you never have another happy moment in your life until you see the error in your ways.

Disgusted by you,
Brent Brooks

Thank you for showing what you really are. As a gun owner for over fifty years and a gun user for nearly 65 years, I was impressed with the total ability you have to denigrate all gun owners by a shabby and unconscionable attempt to harm a man that has been devastated by the loss of a child. I am hoping that there is a special place in hell for you and all who support you. You are beneath contempt and reaffirm every negative opinion that decent people such as myself receive due to your total lack of character. Well done, you have proven that the gun nuts are just that, nuts.

I say this to Connecticut Carry.....when you have a child killed in a senseless act of gun violence at such a tender age, THEN you have a right to criticize. This father is not perfect, to be sure, but neither are any of you. Nobody is. But to debase his loss in such a cheap manner, only shows you have no soul, and no conscience.

No parent should have to bury their child (and I know that pain), and no parent should EVER have to bury a child so young shot to death in their own school room.

Connecticut Carry, no matter what this father's sins are, you are despicable to the max.

Mr. Burgess,

I read today of your organization's outrageous claim that a parent of a Newtown victim of gun violence is "profiting" from his son's death. In visiting your website, I see that you arrived at your views about liberty from having run afoul of law enforcement yourself! Clearly, since 2010, you have profited from the organization you formed to vanquish your own personal demon.

In recent months, I've learned that there is no reason to appeal to gun lovers' humanity. You have none. All I can do is continue my advocacy one behalf of other parents who have lost their children too soon. Thanks for providing the list of legislators to whom I will register my complaint that your organization should be disbanded and cut off from donating any money to any political cause.
